

Figure 1 | Discovery mechanism: suppression can erase detector evidence

Mechanism boundary: the fixed clutter-only subspace does not contain most target energy; the audit supports a weaker but defensible claim, namely target-bearing subspace-estimation sensitivity.

Rank-30 audit: mean two-sided overlap < 0.6%, while structured-clutter samples show 3.67-4.42 dB nonlinear target loss and high raw-branch weights.